About Me

I come from a village in West Bengal, India and currently work as a Medical Representative. However, my true passion lies in web development. I want to become a web developer because I enjoy creating things that people can use and appreciate.
Outside of work, I enjoy playing video games and watching movies. These hobbies help me think creatively and solve problems. They inspire me to design websites that offer engaging experiences and captivating visuals.
One of my strengths is my ability to learn quickly. I am always eager to gain new knowledge and improve my skills.
